Biography

Jordan Kane is a freelance solo artist and multi-instrumentalist song writer based in Adelaide, Australia. He has created music in a vast range of genres such as post-rock, shoegaze, dream pop, lo-fi hip hop, electronic, ambient, metal, rock, folk and many others. His style varies greatly, but often features spacy atmospheres, light and dark shades, a wide dynamic range, influences from multiple musical genres, a big sound and creative drum beats. Jordan Kane plays drums, guitar, bass, keyboard, sings and can play a wide array of percussive instruments. His music has often been described as being "Fulfilled with soft, radiating light and emotional resonance with a strong feeling of nature" and as having "Great use of dynamics and instrumentation". Jordan Kane is also the drummer and collaborative song writer/lyricist of the post-rock/black/doom metal band Nautilus and also has a one-man atmospheric post-black metal band under the name Hiraeth. He has also been a member of the piano focused indie pop/rock band Gorgijas Son and the pop cover band The Pastry Band, playing drums for both acts. Jordan Kane has also been trained in jazz and funk in which he regularly played throughout his high school, achieving 4th place for his division on drums in the Generations in Jazz competition and achieving gold in the Catholic Schools Music/Jazz Competition.
